

Falun Gong Practitioners Tortured in Mental Hospitals Throughout China

Overview

Since Falun Gong was banned on July 20th, 1999, an estimated 1,000 Falun Gong practitioners have been forcefully detained in mental hospitals. The Chinese mental hospitals use various inhuman “treatments” on Falun Gong practitioners, including physical torture, relentless psychological abuse, and the illegal administration of sedatives and anti-psychotic drugs. The police have usually placed the practitioners into hospitals by force, although sometimes deception was used; in addition, they did not notify the family members of the incarcerations. The brutal torture that has taken place in the mental hospitals has severely disabled many practitioners both physically and mentally.

Falun Gong practitioners have been sent to mental hospitals either because they did not give up Falun Gong, because they went to the government to appeal for an end to the persecution of Falun Gong, or because they refused to defame Falun Gong's founder, Li Hongzhi, as the authorities demanded. The practitioners were sent to mental hospitals by the local government, the police, detention centers, work units, or even by their families, who were under heavy pressure from the authorities. Although they were physically and mentally healthy, and all their examinations indicated that they were normal and rational people, they were nevertheless treated as mentally unbalanced. The practitioners have been injected with drugs against their will. Some have even been tortured by being electrocuted, force-fed, beaten, or starved.

Daniel B. Borenstein, President of the American Psychiatric Association, wrote a letter to the New York Times entitled “Jailed in China: Confront the Abuse” published March 27th, 2001, in which he stated:

The WPA [World Psychiatric Association] Committee on the Use and Abuse of Psychiatry has moved too slowly in the face of serious accusations about psychiatric imprisonment of Falun Gong members, union and student leaders, and others who are diagnosed as “political maniacs” and subjected to shock therapy and psycho-tropic medications.

Below is only a partial list of the Falun Gong practitioners who have been sent to mental hospitals:

I. Falun Gong Practitioners Tortured to Death in Mental Hospitals

Ms. Ma was detained in the Zhucheng Town detention center for 30 days and she was fined 3,000 Yuan (The average salary for a city worker in China is 500 Yuan). Afterwards, she was sent back to her factory to work under supervision.

In May 2000, Ms. Ma was detained in Beijing for appealing to the government to stop persecuting Falun Gong. She was sent back to her factory to be detained. Because she went on a hunger strike to protest the illegal detention, the factory sent her to the Zhucheng Mental Hospital in Zhucheng Town.

Though she was healthy, she was treated like a mental patient in the mental hospital. Under direct orders from the government, the staff in the hospital injected her with drugs and forced her to take drugs orally. In September 2000, after two months of being forced to take drugs, Ms. Ma died in the hospital. Her parents were threatened by the factory not to inquire further into the circumstances surrounding her death.

2. Su Gang Died from Torture in the Changle Mental Hospital

Mr. Su went to Beijing to report the injustices to a higher authority. As a result, he was arrested and escorted back to his work unit, where he was detained for one month. On May 23rd, 2000, the authorities from Mr. Su's workplace put him in the Changle Mental Hospital without notifying his family. He was detained there until May 31st, 2000. On May 31st, 2000, Mr. Su Gang's uncle, Mr. Su Lianxi, learned of nephew's detention in the hospital. Mr. Su Lianxi then started a hunger strike to protest his nephew's illegal detention.

At 6:00 p.m. on May 31st, 2000, in spite of interference from Ge Yunwei, the head of the Qidu Public Security Department, the security members of Mr. Su Gang's workplace sent him back to his father, Mr. Su Dean. After going through nine days of torture in the mental hospital, which included daily over-doses of medication that damaged his neurological system, Mr. Su looked entirely different. His eyes were dull and glazed over and his pale face was expressionless; his reactions were very slowly and his limbs seemed stiff. Although he was well cared for by his family at home, Mr. Su Gang's condition continued to worsen. He was not able to recover from the severe mental and physical damage he suffered in the mental hospital. He died on the morning of June 10th, 2000.

Location of Incident:

1. Yandu County Food Bureau Hotel, Yandu county, Jiangsu Province
2. Nanyang Detention Center, Jiangsu Province
3. Yungang Mental Hospital, Yandu county, Jiangsu Province

A Brief Description of Incident:

In February 2001, Mr. Zhang Wannian went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. He was arrested and detained at the Yandu County Food Bureau Hotel. He was mentally abused and forced to denounce Falun Gong. The guards took turns watching him and forced him to remain standing at all times. His determination in practicing Falun Gong remained unchanged, and he endured this inhuman treatment for thirteen days. He was forced to pay 7,500 Yuan (About one year's salary for the average worker in China) for the “case fee” and he was then moved to the Nanyang Detention Center.

After one month at the Nanyang Detention Center, Mr. Zhang was sent to the Yungang Mental Hospital, where he was abused and tortured for another forty-five days. He was then sentenced to one year forced labor. Around mid-September 2001, Mr. Zhang began a hunger strike in protest of his mistreatment and illegal detention, and he became completely debilitated within one week. The prison guards were afraid they would be blamed for his death, so they carried him to his home. Mr. Zhang passed away one day later.

After the government banned the Falun Gong group officially in July 1999, Ms. Shi and her husband were forced to report to the local police station about their “thoughts” every month. In May 2000, the Police Department of Fuyang City “committed” Ms. Shi to the Seventh Hospital of Hangzhou City a psychiatric hospital, although Ms. Shi was healthy mentally and physically. In the hospital, the “ward” should really be called a jail cell. The “bed” was made of pieces of wood, covered with straw. The basic necessities for living and sanitation had been ignored. The staff in the hospital, under pressure from the police, gave Shi injections of large doses of sedatives using a large syringe, which caused her health to deteriorate.

In the hospital, under police direction she was not fed for a whole week, in order to prevent her from speaking of her faith in Falun Gong. On September 10th, 2000, Ms. Shi died of starvation.

On June 7th, 2000, her husband Qin Yuhuan, the secretary of Communist Party of No. 1 Construction Company of Lingwu City, together with the head of the hospitalization department of Lingwu mental hospital, Dong Yun and nurse Tao Zhijun committed her to the mental hospital. In the mental hospital, she was tied to the bed and forcefully injected with a large amount of drugs. According to Doctor Yong, the dose she was given was eight times the normal dosage. On the morning of November 23, 1999, officers of the Nanguan Police Substation in Weicheng District escorted him back and detained him in a damp and dark prison cell in a narrow hallway of the Nanguan Police Substation. He was forced to do everything, including eating and relieving himself, in the cell. No blanket was given to him although the weather was bitterly cold. He hardly ate anything and was coughing all day long because of the poor health conditions in the cell.

On the evening of November 24, 1999, after being detained for two days, he was sent to the Weicheng Detention Center by his work unit and was sentenced to administrative detention. While in the detention center, Mr. Yang's health deteriorated. The guard asked him a few questions about his health, but did not take any action to help him.

2. Head nurse, Ms. Wang, from the Daizhuang Mental Hospital, Jining City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

On September 11th, 1999, because she proclaimed in writing that she would not give up her Falun Gong cultivation practice and because she refused to sign a “repentance” letter to renounce Falun Gong, police officers, accompanied by several doctors and nurses, took Lu Dongmei to the Jining Psychiatric Hospital. One week later, without psychiatric examination, the hospital staff, pressured by the police department, tried to give Ms. Lu unknown drugs in pill form. She refused to take them because she was a healthy person without any physical or mental illness. Then the department head, Han Peng, ordered five people to hold Ms. Lu down and injected her with drugs. The doctors gave her another injection two weeks later. Ms. Lu was kept at the hospital for over two months. Ms. Lu described how she felt after she received the drugs. She felt agitated, which caused her to pace around her hospital room. She also suffered from insomnia. Ms. Lu felt weak and experienced constant muscle spasms in her leg while she was trying to sleep. In addition, she could not focus on an object, could not concentrate, and one minute felt like a day had passed by. Later, her neck and arm muscles involuntarily contorted to one side. Ms. Lu was unable to prevent this from happening.

Due to the efforts of her family and friends, Mrs. Lu was eventually released from the hospital. She was never given any written diagnosis or record of her treatment.

Qiao Xingxia was detained for publicly practicing Falun Gong. After seventeen days of detention in the Jining Detention Center, the police and her work unit pressured her family to force her to renounce Falun Gong. On December 17th, 1999, Qiao was taken to the Daizhuang Mental Hospital against her will. While filling out the registration forms, her family had to pay a 2,000 Yuan patient care fee and sign an agreement for hospitalization. On her third day in the hospital, the hospital tied her to a bed and started forcing drugs into her. During the first ten days, they administered one tablet per day, and, afterwards, two tablets per day. In the end, Mrs. Qiao was detained in the hospital for 22 days.

The hospital claimed that Mrs. Qiao Xingxia was mentally ill though she underwent no examinations or tests. The hospital never explained their diagnosis or the treatment plans they had for her. Though she refused to take drugs because she was not sick, she was restrained, beaten, and forcibly given drugs, the names of which were unknown to either her or to her family. After she was given the drugs, her mouth puckered and was dry and hot; she could hardly control her tongue. She lost her sense of balance and couldn't stand or walk. In addition, she felt agitated and she had unbearable pain all over her body. Mrs. Qiao kept kicking her legs and she erratically scratched her body. Her whole body was weak and limp after she was given the drugs. Her memory faded; she had a headache, and she became lethargic and felt anxious.

Li Fengzhi was detained in the Daizhuang Mental Hospital for over two months because he practiced Falun Gong. He could not keep his tongue inside his head and he gasped for air constantly when he left the hospital. Now, he is being detained at the Wangcun Detention Center in Jinan City, Shandong Province.

Wang Jiming was a worker in the Jining City Hospital for Infectious Diseases. He was detained at the Daizhuang Mental Hospital for more than a month for not giving up the practice of Falun Gong.

Shi Shuping was detained at the Daizhuang Mental Hospital for practicing Falun Gong. Later, he was detained in the Wangcun Detention Center in Jinan City, Shandong Province.

Officers from the “610 Office” (a government agency specially set up to persecute Falun Gong and with the authority to override the legal system at every level) and the Jining City police station sent Ms. Ping to the mental hospital because she practiced Falun Gong.

After the Chinese government banned Falun Gong on July 20th, 1999, Mr. Mao's work unit confined him in their security department because he practiced Falun Gong. He was also criticized by the authorities at public meetings, and detained for half a month. In November 1999, his work unit escorted him to the mental hospital, where he was given electric shock treatments by the hospital staff. He was also injected with drugs against his will, which impaired his central nervous system. Because of the injections, he was unable to move. He drooled constantly and he couldn't feed himself. Mr. Mao was released from the hospital after six months at the strong request of his family. Afterwards, he was illegally sent to a detention center.

On November 20th, 1999, Practitioner Zhao Huimin, together with a married couple (Tian Zhao and Qin Mingying), went to Beijing to appeal for an end to the persecution of Falun Gong. After being arrested and escorted back, the water and power at Zhao's home were cut off. Later, against their wishes and the wishes of their families, Zhao Huimin, Tian Zhao, and Qin Mingying were sent to the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital by authorities from Laiyang City and Xizhibo Village. In the hospital, Doctor Li Tao and Doctor Wang forcefully injected them with drugs that were potentially damaging to their central nervous system. After receiving injections for eighteen days, the doctors also forced them to take pills. Zhao Huimin started to twitch and foam at the mouth. The hospital staff, however, ignored these symptoms and continued to give forced injections. The injections and pills continued until they were released. The village committee notified the practitioners that they needed to pay for all of their own medical expenses. The Xizhibo Village officials, Sun Guiqing, Zhang Zhaoyi, Liu Jianhui, and Jiang Zhihui, all directly participated in the persecution of the Falun Gong practitioners. They personally sent the practitioners—who had gone to Beijing to appeal for the right to practice Falun Gong—to the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital.

9. The Xinglong Street police station, Yantai City, Shandong Province

Location of Detention and Torture:

Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Before July 20th, 1999, the authorities from Mr. Sun Minghao's work unit (the Children and Youth Palace in Yantai City), including Qu Fengjia (Director of the Children and Youth Palace), often pressured Sun Minghao to give up Falun Gong. After July 20th, they confiscated his books and illegally detained him for two and a half months, asking him to write a “renunciation” statement giving up the practice of Falun Gong.

On February 15th, 2000, a group led by Qu Fengjia again pressured Sun Minghao for a “pledge” saying he would not go to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop persecuting Falun Gong. Sun Minghao refused. Sun Minghao was then detained and forced to attend a brainwashing class. To protest, Sun Minghao started a hunger strike and demanded his unconditional release.

His father suggests that his son be sent home, but each time he was refused. On February 19th, 2000, the fifth day of Sun Minghao’s hunger strike, Qu Fengjia asked Sun Minghao’s parents to sign a paper saying they could send him to a mental hospital. They threatened that if they did not sign the paper, they would send him to a detention center.

Qu Fengjia even called in two policemen from the Xinglong Street Police Station to increase the pressure on Sun Minghao's family. Under such intense pressure, Sun Minghao's father signed Sun Minghao into the mental hospital.

That afternoon, Sun Minghao was dragged from his room and taken to the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital by Qu Fengjia, Liu Lumin the Vice Director of the Children and Youth Palace, a policeman from Xinglong Street Police Station, and a driver named Chi Hongguo. On the way, Jiang Jiamin said to Sun Minghao several times that they would send him home immediately if he would write a "pledge" not to go to Beijing again to appeal.

In the hospital, Sun Minghao was put in the 6th Ward. They did a series of examinations on Sun Minghao and the result showed that he was normal. On the night of February 20th, 2000, because Sun Minghao refused to take the drugs, the nurse on duty called in several patients to hold him down and tie his hands and feet to the bed. The nurse forced a tube into his nose and poured the drugs down the tube. Sun Minghao felt nauseated and vomited. They did not untie Sun Minghao from the bed until the next day. From that point on, the nurse on duty watched him take the drugs every time. They forced the injections into him and threatened him by saying that if he did not comply, they would tie him to the bed again. To protest this illegal detention, Sun Minghao started a hunger strike. The next day, the hospital staff force-fed Sun Minghao. They violently inserted a tube into his nose many times. When they had to pull the tube out in order to re-insert it properly, Sun Minghao threw up food and blood.

Next, they gave him an intravenous injection. They covered his face with a pillow, pressing down very hard, so he could not breathe. Many people were holding his legs and arms down. Sun Minghao was unconscious for 24 hours after the injection.

On March 19th, 2000, in response to Sun Minghao's father's strong request, Qu Fengjia sent the Vice Director Liu Lumin and the Vice Director Wang Yanning to the Hospital. At that time, Sun Minghao had been tied to the bed for five days. Because of the hunger strike, drug abuse, and physical constraints, Sun Minghao had become weak and emaciated. The two vice directors, however, still demanded he write a pledge saying that he would not go to Beijing to appeal. Otherwise, they would not release him. Sun Minghao's parents' strong requests finally resulted in his release. Upon his release, Sun Minghao could not stand. The hospital did not issue any medical diagnosis statement or give him any follow-up treatment. In addition, he was forced to pay for all of the medical costs in the hospital through deductions from his salary.

Location of Detention and Torture:

Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City, Shandong Province

Perpetrators:

1. Qu Fengjia, Director of the Children and Youth Palace in Yantai City, Shandong Province
2. Liu Shuguan, the secretary of the Yantai Communist Youth League (Ms. Sun's direct superior of the Children and Youth Palace), Yantai City, Shandong Province
3. Wang Yangning, Vice Director of the Children and Youth Palace in Yantai City, Shandong Province
4. Liu Lumin, Vice Director of the Children and Youth Palace in Yantai City, Shandong Province
5. Wang Yong, policeman from Yantai City, Shandong Province
6. Dr. Jiang, from the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City, Shandong Province
7. The Laiyang local government and police, Laiyang City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Ms. Sun Xiangshu was healthy and had no family history of mental illness. After July 1999, she was forced to quit her job because she practiced Falun Gong. Qu Fengjia, who was in charge of persecuting Falun Gong practitioners in the Children and Youth Palace in Yantai City, had tried hard to get Ms. Sun to stop practicing Falun Gong. On February 15th, 2000, in order to prevent her from going to Beijing to appeal, Qu and several other authorities illegally detained Ms. Sun. Ms. Sun went on a hunger strike to protest the illegal detention. In addition, she refused to write a statement promising not to appeal again. Therefore, on February 19th, Liu Shuguan, the secretary of the Yantai Communist Youth League, directed Wang Yangning, the Vice Director of the Children and Youth Palace, a policeman named Wang Yong, and Ms. Sun's father (who was under pressure), to take Ms. Sun—against her will—to the Yantai Mental Hospital.

Ms. Sun Xiangshu was put into 2nd Ward of the mental hospital. Ms. Sun's routine test results were normal. She refused all drugs so the chief nurse, together with a few other nurses, held her down on the bed and tried to feed her the drugs.

While in the hospital, Wang Yanting, and Liu Lumin from her work unit, told her that she would be released if she guaranteed not to appeal any more; but Ms. Sun still refused to do so. Mr. Jiang, a medical director from the hospital, said that they were under strong pressure from the City government. Whoever was sent there had to receive treatment until they stopped practicing Falun Gong. Because Ms. Sun refused the treatment, they gave her injections by force. Seven or eight people pulled her onto a bed. When another patient asked them not to do this, the chief nurse threatened to tie her up as well. They tied Ms. Sun to the bed and injected her with drugs. Ms. Sun felt very weak after the treatment, and her throat and mouth felt very dry. During the five days she was tied to the bed, she was injected with eight bottles of drugs.

Because Ms. Sun refused to have the additional checkups that Dr. Jiang requested, they tied her up for another five days. The hospital refused to discharge Ms. Sun and the other Falun Gong practitioners even though they made constant requests. Finally, the practitioners began a hunger strike. Dr. Jiang said if they agreed not to go to Beijing to appeal again, he could discharge them, but he would still need their employer's consent. He also threatened to use the electric bed to shock Ms. Sun. Because her parents made a number of strong requests, Ms. Sun was released seven days after she started her hunger strike.

Five Falun Gong practitioners from Laiyang—Li Li, Jiang Jiao, Zhang Yun, Li Ying, and Wang Shiling—were sent to the mental hospital by their local township government because they practiced Falun Gong. The local officials were also very afraid that they would go to Beijing to appeal.

Three Falun Gong practitioners from Laiyang (Jiang Shuling, Teng Cuijie, and Jiang Shuping) were sent to the mental hospital by the local government and police because they went to Beijing to appeal. The police did not remove Ms. Jiang's handcuffs until they reached the ward.

Mr. Song Hui was sent to the mental hospital because he staged a 14-day hunger strike to protest his illegal detention. In the hospital, several nurses dragged Song Hui to receive an injection. After the injection, Song Hui's face turned blue.

From February 28th to March 15th, 2000, Ms. Sun Yuhua was detained in the 3rd Ward of the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital because she wrote a letter to the central leader of the Communist Party to appeal for her husband, who was illegally fired from his job because he practiced Falun Gong. In the mental hospital, her arms and legs were shackled to the bed for two days. She was forced to take drugs and injections that should have been used only on mentally ill patients. Ms. Sun and several other Falun Gong practitioners detained in the mental hospital all vomited after being force-fed with these drugs.

Ms. Ning Shuzhi was sent to the mental hospital because she wanted to practice Falun Gong. The hospital staff also tried to forcefully give Ms. Ning an injection, though they failed.

5. Chen Yujie Becomes Weak after an Injection at the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital

Victim:

Chen Yujie, female, employee of the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China Laixi Branch, Laixi City, Shandong Province

Location of Detention and Torture:

Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City, Shandong Province

Perpetrators:

1. Li Tao, Director of the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City Shandong Province
2. The Staff of the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Ms. Chen Yujie was arrested because she went to Beijing twice in June and July 2000, to appeal to the government to stop persecuting Falun Gong. As a result, the local police sent her to the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital.

The hospital director, Li Tao, told Ms. Chen, “We specialize in treating Falun Gong practitioners.” Since July of 1999, many Falun Gong practitioners had been sent there. Six were present when Ms. Chen arrived.

When Chen was sent to the ward, she saw a female practitioner in her fifties tied to a bed. The woman said, “Nurse, I need to use the restroom.” The nurse ordered, “Do so on the bed!” It happened that this practitioner had refused to receive an injection, so they had restrained her in order to give it to her. Without untying her, the nurse ordered a mental patient to place a bedpan by her, loosen her pants, and let her urinate into the pot—while still tied up.

On the second day in the mental institute, they started to give Ms. Chen injections. The treatment process lasted ten days, and they increased the drug's dose ten to twenty times the norm. Under the influence of the drugs, the practitioners could do nothing but eat and sleep. They were unable to focus, and their attention spans weakened; their arms and legs also became weak and numb. By reducing them to such a state, the doctors destroyed the Falun Gong practitioners' ability to practice the exercises. Ms. Chen was held there for 45 days.

6. Wang Xingying's Health is Severely Damaged after Her Torture at the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital

Victim:

Wang Xingying, female, an employee of the Shandong Province Sanhuan Lock Manufactory Corp. She lives at 77-10, No. 4 Culture Street, Zifu District, Yantai City, Shandong Province.

Location of the Incident:

Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital (also called Laiyang Mental Hospital), Laiyang City, Shandong Province

Perpetrators:

1. The Head and staff of the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital, Laiyang City, Shandong Province
2. The Head of the South Street Police Station of Laiyang City, Shandong Province

A Brief Description on the Incident:

Because Wang Xingying went to Beijing to appeal for Falun Gong, and because she refused to renounce Falun Gong, the local police told her family that she would be sentenced to forced labor for three years. After detaining her for many days in the Laiyang City South Street Police Station on March 2nd, 2000, under a great deal of pressure from the authorities, Wang's company and her husband, sent her to the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital in Laiyang City. The hospital has many sections where dozens of Falun Gong practitioners from places like the Zifu District and Laiyang City are detained. Ms. Wang was placed on the 2nd Ward.

On her second day there, the staff tied her to the bed. They gave her a transfusion with one full bottle of an unknown drug. They also gave her two injections every day. Ms. Wang was infused with a total of twenty bottles of the unknown drug and forty injections. Everyday she had to take twelve pills, ten of which were sleeping pills. Two nurses would watch her take the pills. Once, the staff forcefully injected electric needles into the heads of all the Falun Gong practitioners.

If Wang practiced the exercises, she would be tied to the bed. Wang was also beaten more than once, after which she could not eat; her whole body felt fatigued. In addition, both of her legs were crookedly afterwards and she could not make them straight. Wang became so weakened that her eyelids drooped and she was unable to hold her mouth shut. In addition, she became constipated. The worst part was that she couldn't sleep because of the uncontrollable spasms in her feet.

Standing was very hard, and her legs would shake while sitting or lying down. On March 30th, 2000, when her husband came to pick her up, the director would not release her. However, upon seeing her tortured and badly emaciated body, her husband insisted on taking her home. Despite her condition, the director still required that her husband buy five bottles of sleeping pills to give her at home. Four days after Wang returned home, her skin turned yellow, her eyes became yellowish-green, and she vomited. The emergency examination at the hospital showed that all the drugs she had been forced to take had seriously poisoned her liver. Her G.P.T. (i.e., glutamic-pyruvic transaminase) also increased by forty times more than it had been before she was imprisoned at the mental hospital.

11. The Heads of the Zhaoyuan Gold Mine, Yantai City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Since July 1999, doctors at the Yantai Psychiatric Recovery Hospital in Laiyang City, Shandong Province, have been treating and unethically administering drugs to dozens of Falun Gong practitioners. Ms. Xie Shuling was sent there in October 2000. The amount of the drugs administered to practitioners was more than five times the amount given to the other patients. They used this method to destroy the practitioners' nerve centers and to cause serious harm to the practitioners both physically and mentally. Among the numerous debilitating results some became too weak to walk; others suffered from chronic insomnia, and some were not able to control the severe shaking in their bodies, etc. Doctor Wang in the hospital said, "We know you are not mentally ill, what we want to do is to stop you from appealing for the right to practice Falun Gong." They also overcharged the practitioners for their medical expenses.

Around March 10th, 2000, practitioner Sun Yansheng was sent to the mental hospital because he practiced Falun Gong. Yansheng was a worker at the Zhaoyuan Gold Mine. His employer told his family that Yansheng had been sent to a seminar, but he had actually been committed to the mental hospital. Gong Yuzhu, the Chief of the hospital, and Ding Yuanlin, director of the 6th Ward agreed to commit Mr. Sun Yansheng to the hospital even though they were fully aware that he was not mentally ill.

Ms. Wang Weijie was sent to the mental hospital in March 2000. She was forcibly injected with and force-fed a large amount of drugs every day. This made her very weak and lethargic.

There were seven female practitioners imprisoned in the 2nd Ward, and five practitioners in 3rd Ward. The practitioners they currently know are Ji Yan, Huo Xufen and Wang Jinglun.

Location of Detention and Torture:

4. Zhang Xuexian, Head and Physician-in-charge of the Mental Illness Department of Weifang Rehabilitation Hospital, Weicheng district, Weifang City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Because she refused to renounce Falun Gong, Mr. Xu Jian and Mr. Wang Liqun took Dr. Zhou Enguang to the mental illness ward at the Weifang Rehabilitation Hospital on December 8th, 1999. At the hospital there was no one representing or speaking on behalf of Dr. Zhou. They demanded that, Zhou, in order to avoid hospitalization, sign a letter stating that she would not go to the Appeals Office and that she would stop practicing Falun Gong. Because she refused, however, Liu Zhubin signed the admission papers without her consent.

There were no admission records or recorded diagnosis. Dr. Zhou was also not notified about the results of her diagnosis, her treatment plan, or any drugs that she was given. There were no records of the medical procedures taken, the drugs given, and no records of the reactions and symptoms that followed the administration of the drugs. Furthermore, there were no records of when Dr. Zhou was restrained, the type of equipment used, how long she was restrained, or the actions taken by the attending medical personnel.

Dr. Zhou's family appealed to higher officials, including the Director of the Health Bureau in Weicheng district, Weifang City; however, this was unsuccessful. To protest the illegal detention in the mental hospital, her family helped her escape. Because of this, Zhou's husband was illegally detained for two days on orders from Wang Liqun, Xu Jian and Liu Zhubin. He was locked in a room less than ten square meters in size at the mental ward in the Weifang Rehabilitation Hospital. There, they threatened him saying that if he didn't surrender Dr. Zhou, they would fire him from his job. Dr. Zhou had been forced to stay there for over 81 days. She was also fined more than 6,000 Yuan (about a year's salary for an average urban worker in China). To avoid further persecution, she left home and became homeless.

6. The Head of the Jiaozhou City Mental Hospital (also called Jiaozhou Psychological Recovery Center), Jiaozhou City, Shandong Province.

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Some Falun Gong practitioners in the Jiaozhou City of Shandong Province went to Beijing to appeal the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. The local political and legal committee directed the police department to incarcerate them in the Jiaozhou City Mental Hospital in Jiaozhou City. The Falun Gong practitioners were tortured in the mental hospital. The tortures included forced injections and given drugs.

On September 12th, 1999, after Ms. Tan Guihua went to Beijing to appeal to the government, some officers from her work unit and the Politics and Law Commission broke into her home and took her to the mental hospital. The hospital had already prepared a large dose of drugs to inject her with and they had planned to give Ms. Tan the shot as soon as she arrived. They held her down and gave her the injection. In only a few seconds, she began to feel faint and sick and her heart started to beat very fast. A female doctor asked her every day whether or not she would continue to practice Falun Gong. Because Ms. Tan always said yes, the nurse shocked Ms. Tan with electric needles. She was shocked on 7 different occasions.

Ms. Tan was also force-fed drugs and given injections three times a day. So she would not have to give Ms. Tan daily injections, the nurse decided to try a new injection whose effects would last for more than one month. After that injection, Ms. Tan's menstruation stopped. She was unable to move her eyes and her action and reaction time became very slow. A few days later, they added another drug to her injections. As a result, she started to shake violently and she could not even hold a bowl. She was tortured like this for 20 days. When her family finally picked her up, she was very disoriented and could not see things clearly. She lost her memory and her whole body became swollen. Her eyes also looked dull. Her reactions continued to be slow and it took a long time for her to say a word.

In February 2000, Ms. Qiu Yuaner was detained in the mental hospital for two months because she went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong.

On February 14th, 2000, Ms. Kuang Bencui went to Tiananmen Square to appeal to the government. She was arrested and sent to the mental hospital in Jiaozhou City. For two months, Ms. Kuang was treated like a mental patient. She was forced to take drugs and she was given injections. Two men grabbed her arms, while one pinched her nose. They then drove a chopstick between her teeth and force-fed her the drugs. Ms. Kuang was force-fed drugs three times a day with the dosage increasing from one tablet to six tablets at a time. She was detained in the mental hospital for two months and finally released to her family.

On April 25th, 2000, Mr. Xu Yanzhong was sent to the Jiaozhou City Mental Hospital in Jiaozhou City for forced treatment. Because he refused to accept the treatment, several people tied him down and forced him to take the drugs and to have injections. Mr. Xu suffered unimaginable physical and mental mistreatment. After the injections, he suffered from weakness all over his body; he had difficulty opening his eyes, and he was nervous and agitated, being unable to maintain his balance while standing.

On May 13th, 2000, Mr. Liu Zhaohong went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. He was confined in the mental hospital after he was escorted back to Jiaozhou City.

A Brief Report of the Incident:

On April 22nd, 2000, Ms. Zhang Cuihua was arrested while on her way to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. She was then detained in the Xicheng Hotel of Jinan City. The next evening, four policemen came and interrogated her, asking about the details of the experience-sharing conference she organized, and about a campaign to collect signatures on a letter to the International Human Rights Conference to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. In order to get Ms. Zhang to talk, the policemen slapped her in the face, pulled her hair, twisted her handcuffed hands, burned her hip with the tip of a cigarette, and kicked her head.

On April 25th, 2000, Ms. Zhang returned home. The government gave her family a choice: They had to choose between sending her to a labor camp for at least one year, or sending her to a mental hospital. Only after strong pressure from the government did her husband and Ms. Zhang's work unit send her to the Third People's Hospital in Weifang City.

Three days later, Ms. Ma Yanxin, another Falun Gong practitioner, was sent to the mental hospital because she went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. After strong pressure from the government, Ms. Ma's family sent her to the hospital just three days after she was released from the detention center.

Though the examination showed she was normal, the hospital kept her in order to make money from her stay.

Ms. Zhang and Ms. Ma protested their detention with a hunger strike. As a result, they were tied to a bed and force-fed by forcing a tube through the nose to the stomach. Ms. Ma was force-fed four times and Ms. Zhang three times. When the first force-feeding was over, the hospital still kept them tied up. Even when they wanted to go to the bathroom, the nurses refused to release them. They asked another patient to help them urinate into a spittoon, but because their arms and feet were tied to the bed, the urine went all over the bed. Because the nurses did not release them, they had to lie on the urine soaked bed.

Ms. Ma was very healthy before she was sent to the hospital. She changed dramatically after she was forced to take at least twenty pills a day during her 18-day hospitalization. Ms. Ma could not coordinate her arms and feet and her tongue was dry and hard. It was hard for her to open her eyes, and she could not remember things.

The same thing happened to Ms. Zhang. Her hands and feet convulsed, her heart was beating fast, her tongue was dry and hard, and she could not coordinate her arms and feet. She felt dizzy and could not remember things. Because of the drugs' effect on Ms. Zhang's body, it was hard for her to sit or stand. She woke up many times during the night, and had severe headaches. When she told the doctor about her symptoms, he just gave her more drugs. Ms. Zhang was detained at the mental hospital for thirty-six days.

A Brief Report of the Incident:

In the period from late June to late August 2000, 11 Falun Gong practitioners from Shouguang City, Shandong Province went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. After they were arrested by the Beijing police and taken back by the County Government, they were forcefully sent to the Beiluo mental hospital, where they experienced inhuman torture for 64 consecutive days.

Every day, the practitioners endured extreme physical torture. Three times a day the doctors and nurses tied them to their beds, and injected them with debilitating drugs. The practitioners were injected with one drug, Dongmianling [hibernation magician], which is only supposed to be used on patients with severe mental illness. The practitioners were given a drug that causes damage to the central nervous system. After taking this drug, one goes into a drug-induced stupor where they cannot stand up. The practitioners were unconscious for a long period, and they were nauseated and vomited. Their faces were also swollen and pale. They were badly beaten for refusing to be injected with drugs.

To force-feed them the drugs, the doctors even inserted tubes into their noses and pried open their mouths and teeth using chopsticks. As a form of punishment, they vigorously jabbed a chopstick back and forth inside their mouths. Many practitioners' mouths were full of blood. In addition to these mistreatments, their families were not allowed to visit them and they were isolated from the outside world. These normal people were treated as if they were mentally ill. The doctors even said, “This hospital is the No.2 detention center!”

After miserably torturing the practitioners for 64 days, the Beiluo mental hospital extorted 3,000 RMB from each of them. The county extorted 21,000 RMB from practitioner Sang Xiulian. Li Jianmei was sent to a labor camp.

There she was forced to attend brainwashing class in her work unit for one week. Then, she was detained in the Linzi District Police Substation for 15 days. Because of relentless pressure from the police (including Sun Zhenrong, Superintendent of the Xuegong Police Substation in Linzi district), on March 18th, the police and Ms. Lu's family sent her to a Mental Hospital, where she completely lost her freedom. The hospital staff, under pressure from the government, forced Ms. Lu to take drugs. At the strong request of her relatives, and after requiring her father's guarantee that she would not go to Beijing again to appeal, the Xuegong Police Substation released Ms. Lu from the hospital without ever having done a diagnostic exam.

After being released from the hospital, Ms. Lu was monitored by her parents. The police threatened that, if she went to Beijing again to appeal, the police would confiscate her parent's house, and arrest and sentence her. Policemen from the Xuegong Police Substation, the Lushan County Police Station, and officer Zhou from the Health Bureau monitored her parents' house to prevent her from going to Beijing. Ms. Lu's father was asked several times to see Wang, the Secretary of the District Political and Legal Committee. In addition, she was given five types of drugs three times a day, as well as one injection every night. When she refused to take the drugs, the male doctors and nurses worked together to force her down. They pinched her nose and forced the drugs down her throat. Sometimes they would increase the dosage or give her electric shocks. After taking the drugs, Zhang had reactions and symptoms such as slow cerebral response, partial memory loss, stiff eye movement, yellowish complexion, slowed movements, and constant tearing. There were no diagnostic documents, or any certification provided for her when she was discharged from the hospital. Nor did she receive any follow-up examinations.

On June 8th, 2000, Ms. Li Li was sent to the No. 6 People's Hospital of Pingdu City (a mental hospital) just because she went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop persecuting Falun Gong. Though her family was reluctant to let her go, the Pingdu Local Police Department gave them only two choices: the mental hospital or a Labor Camp. In the mental hospital, Li Li was given drugs and injections without her consent or without any explanation or information about the drugs being used on her. Li Li was occasionally shocked with electric needles. When Li Li refused to take the drugs without an explanation, several doctors and nurses came and held her down, grabbing her arms and legs. Some of them held her head and body down. Others picked her nose up and forcefully administered the drugs through her nose. Two people held her down on a bench and tied her arms to it. They pinched her nose and force-fed her one drug after another. She almost choked to death from this. In addition, none of the results of the diagnosis pertained to her. As a reaction to the drugs, Li Li became overweight and weak, and she was sleepy all day. She could not stop salivating, and she lost control of her arms and legs; she had a terrible headache and could not sleep because her eyes were open all night. Li Li was hospitalized for 123 days.

5. Yuan Fagang, from Zaohu Village, official of Chengyang Town Judicial Department, Chengyang Town, Qingdao City, Shandong Province
6. Doctor Ding, head of Zhonghan Mental Hospital in Laoshan, Qingdao City, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

In March 2000, Ms. Jiang Jing was detained because she went to Beijing to appeal against the persecution of Falun Gong. As a result, she was detained in the basement of the Chengzi Xinyuan Hotel for over six months and she suffered severe persecution during this period of time. In order to protest the violation of her human rights, Ms. Jiang went on a hunger strike three times for a total of twenty days; however, no one paid any attention to her.

It was very dark and damp in the basement. She had neither bed nor blankets, and the police took her overcoat away as well. With only very thin clothes on, she was forced to squat (no sitting was allowed) on the icy-cold cement floor for twenty days. If she sat down, the police would abuse her and yell at her. She was only given a pastry and a preserved vegetable as a meal. She was not allowed to wash. She was confined in this dark basement in the same room as the toilet.

In September, Jiang Jing escaped from the hotel basement, because she didn't want to endure the suffering any more. In October 2000, Jiang Jing was detained again and held at the police station for 24 hours, then put into the same hotel basement to suffer once again.

In November 2000, because she refused to write a letter renouncing Falun Gong, Jiang Jing was sent to the Zhonghan Mental Hospital in Laoshan, without getting any consent from her family.

Inside the mental hospital, the head of the hospital, Director Ding, and other medical staff followed the town government's order and forcefully injected her with a drug. They also said, "The government sent you here so we cannot let you stay in comfort."

A few minutes after the injection, Jiang Jing started to feel uneasy. Her heart began to pound very fast and she started to panic. Her vision became blurred and even went totally dark. Her mouth and tongue felt dry. When Jiang Jing asked the medical staff what kind of drug it was, they lied, saying that it was a sedative to help her sleep. (A medical expert revealed the truth: the government bans this drug. It was only used on rabbits in lab experiments. When used in high doses, it kills rabbits instantly.) During the next few days, Jiang Jing couldn't eat or drink and she became too weak to walk; however, nobody was concerned. Furthermore, regardless of her agony, they forcefully injected her with drugs twice more. While giving the injections, one staff member said, "If you keep on practicing Falun Gong, we'll give you electric needles." At the same time, the director of the town synthetic management office, Zhang Zhongkai, came to the mental hospital to pressure her into writing a letter saying, "As soon as you finish the letter, we'll let you go right away."

It was a month before Jiang Jing found a way to escape from the mental hospital. On that night, people from the mental hospital went to her home to search for her again and the town government also sent people to her home threatening and harassing her family. Because of her severely weakened state it took Ms. Jiang a long time to recover.

In July 2001, Jiang Jing was detained again. She went on a hunger strike for half month and was force-fed many times. Later on, she escaped again.

In August 2001, Jiang Jing was detained once more. On August 26th, 2001, she was forced to jump from a fourth floor and she was severely hurt with several broken bones. Afterwards, she was tied to a wooden bed and beaten by Zhang Zhongkai, the director of the Chengyang Town Synthetic Management Office from Chengyang Town. She was not sent to a hospital until September 14th, 2001. At that time, the town government forced the doctors in the hospital to give a fake diagnosis. Twenty-two days later, she was still handcuffed and force-fed once every five days.

2. Liu Jingfen, female, a resident of Zhuge Town, Yishui County, Shandong Province

Location of Detention and Torture:

Perpetrators:

2. Ruan Bo, staff member of a brainwashing class in Yishui County, Shandong Province
3. Hao Guijin, staff member of a brainwashing class in Yishui County, Shandong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Ms. Hu Fanxia and Ms. Liu Jingfen were arrested and put into a brainwashing class for practicing Falun Gong. Ms. Hu Fanxia and four other practitioners in the class went on a hunger strike to protest the illegal detention. They were sent to the Psychiatric Section of the Yishui County People's Hospital for “electrotherapy.” People could smell the stench of burnt flesh when they received the electrotherapy. Some of them were shocked with electricity until they fainted.

In November 2000, after coming back from the brainwashing class, Ms. Hu Fanxia was extremely weak from the torture. She was beaten brutally for not giving up Falun Gong. One morning, Ruan Bo, Hao Guijin and some other people from the brainwashing class made her lie flat on the ground and roll up her trousers, sweater, and underwear. They cruelly used long bamboo strips from a broom to whip her for the whole day. Hu Fanxia's legs and back were already black and blue and she was unable to move on her own.

One rainy, cold evening, they dragged her out of a room to beat her again. When they became tired, they threw several buckets of cold water on her. At that time, when other practitioners came up to assist her, but they were stopped by Ruan Bo and Hao Guijin. Ms. Hu lay in the mud for a long time before the thugs let the other practitioners carry her back into the room.

The old wounds had not healed before Hu sustained new wounds; the flesh on her legs and back festered and, in some places, stuck to her clothes. Her muscles were so swollen that her trousers could not be taken off when she tried to change her clothes. She tried to use scissors to cut off the trousers but she gave up when she found that it was too unbearably painful. Hao Guijin rushed to the room when he learned about this. He brutally tore her trousers off, along with the flesh. Ms. Hu Fanxia felt such sharp pain that she let out a heart-splitting and blood-curdling scream. After this, Ms. Hu could not move for over a week. She could not lie on her back and could only lie flat on the straw mat. Because she did not give up Falun Gong, Ruan Bo and Hao Guijin often kicked and stepped on her and they peeled her scabs off to torture her and to force her to give up Falun Gong. The local residents near the brainwashing class frequently heard the practitioners' miserable screams.

Each of the practitioners had to pay 800 to 1000 Yuan (about two months wage for an ordinary worker in China) for “expenses.” The police officials made the decision when to release them from the mental hospital. Location of Detention and Torture:

No. 261 Hospital of the Liberation Army (a mental hospital), Beijing

Perpetrators:

Doctors and nurses in No. 261 Hospital of the Liberation Army, Beijing

A Brief Report of the Incident:

In February 2000, on the Chinese New Year's Eve, Lieutenant Zhao Xinli was arrested in Tiananmen Square because he appealed against the official persecution of Falun Gong practitioners. Since he refused to renounce Falun Gong he was detained in a mental hospital, where his torture disfigured him. Lieutenant Zhao was injected on a daily basis with drugs that harmed his nervous system, leaving him physically weak and muddled. The doctor also beat him and verbally abused him. Zhao was given excruciating shocks with an electric probe. The torture had made him extremely weak, as a guard said: “Now he cannot run away!”

Authorities also tried to force Ms. Li Qiuxia and Ms. Wang Ning to give up Falun Gong on many occasions. On June 2nd, 2000, under extreme pressure from the authorities, Ms. Li's work unit and her husband had her committed to a mental hospital. The doctor told her that she would be given punitive drug treatment as long as she refused to formally renounce her practice of Falun Gong. From the start, she refused to take the drugs, so the nurses tried to pry her mouth open and insert a tube into her stomach. They even applied electric torture. Once, when Ms. Li was reciting a collection of poems by Mr. Li Hongzhi, the nurses asked her what she was doing. After she answered, they became quite angry. They bound her to a post and pricked two electrical needles in her temples. As the needles penetrated her flesh, her muscles went into shock—it was excruciatingly painful. She was even forced to take drugs that affected her central nervous system. Nobody was allowed to visit her.

On May 30th, 2000, Ms. Wang was expelled from her post. In addition, she had her Communist Party membership revoked when she traveled back to Beijing. She was also sent to the mental hospital in Beijing.

Three other Falun Gong practitioners from the PLA (People's Liberation Army) were also incarcerated at the hospital during this period.

News Reports:

1. “PLA Officer Drugged in Mental Hospital for Falun Gong Beliefs”, Agence France-Presse (AFP), June 28, 2000

BEIJING, June 28 (AFP) - A People's Liberation Army (PLA) lieutenant general who refused to renounce his beliefs in the outlawed Falungong spiritual movement is being forced to take drugs every day at a mental hospital, a human rights group said Wednesday.

Zhao Xinli is one of more than 400 sane Falungong adherents who have been thrown into psychiatric hospitals in the government's continuing crack down on the group, the Hong Kong-based Information Center for Human Rights and Democracy said.

Zhao, who worked in a military supplies and equipment unit of the PLA, was arrested last month after joining a New Year's Eve protest on Tiananmen Square.

He was placed in a PLA mental hospital in Beijing and injected daily with a drug which harmed his nervous system, leaving him physically weak and muddled, the center said.

An official in the PLA department where Zhao worked confirmed he had been put there because of his affiliation with the Buddhist-based group.

Before the official could answer more questions, his colleague grabbed the phone and said: “We don't have any information to provide.”

Five other PLA members and Falungong believers are also incarcerated at the hospital, the center quoted sources saying.

On Sunday, the rights group and a family member of another Falungong adherent reported the man died after being forced to take medication in an eastern Chinese mental hospital, becoming the 22nd known Falungong-related death due to maltreatment by police.

Su Gang, a computer engineer and college graduate, died on June 10 after receiving twice daily injections for seven days at the Changle Mental Hospital in Changle City, Shandong Province, his father, Su Dean, had told by phone.

In the past year, practitioners and human rights groups have reported several cases of practitioners being locked in mental hospitals.

In the biggest case, more than 50 practitioners living in the countryside just outside Beijing were put in a hospital for about a month to keep them from protesting during the return of Macau to Chinese sovereignty on December 20.

The 400 practitioners placed in mental institutions nationwide include mid-ranking PLA officers, judges and police officers, the center said.

Frank Lu, director of the center, believes locking normal Falungong people into mental hospitals is a policy of the central government. The government has considered the movement the biggest threat to social and political stability since the 1989 Tiananmen Square student-led demonstrations.

2. *“Report: China Commits Army Officer”, AOL/AP, June 28, 2000
BEIJING (AP) - A Chinese army officer has been committed to a psychiatric hospital for refusing to renounce his belief in the banned Falun Gong sect, a rights group said Wednesday.*

Lt. Col. Zhao Xinli was sent last month to an army psychiatric hospital in Beijing where at least five other Falun Gong adherents from the military are being held, the Hong Kong-based Information Center for Human Rights and Democracy said.

The group said Zhao took part in a New Year's protest by Falun Gong followers on Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

After July 20th, 1999, she was arrested because of this. Because Ms. Qi refused to renounce Falun Gong, her brother—under extreme pressure from the police authorities—allowed her to be committed to the Daliushu mental hospital. The local police sub-station and the doctors in the Daliushu Mental Hospital forcefully escorted her to the Daliushu Mental Hospital. She has been detained there for over one year now. Though she was healthy when she entered, the doctors in the mental hospital have been torturing her with forced injections and drugs. They also stated that she couldn't be released until she gives up Falun Gong. Before Ms. Qi was detained, she looked as young as a lady of 40. Since she was illegally detained, however, Ms. Qi was tortured to such an extent that the hair on both sides of her head has all become white and her hands constantly shake, making it extremely difficult for her to paint any more.

10. Head and Doctors in Guangzhou Fangchun Mental Hospital, Guangdong Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Lin Guoxiong graduated from the First Medical University of the Army in 1997 and was offered a job in the university network center due to his excellent achievements in his field. Because he refused to give up Falun Gong, Lin Guoxiong was sent by the university to the Psychiatric department of No. 181 Hospital of the Army in Guilin City, Guangxi Province. He was detained and tortured there from September 1999 to February 2000.

After his release from the mental hospital, he wrote a letter to the government for the repeal of the ban on Falun Gong. This irritated the University authorities and he was detained for over two months again at the University.

Because he withdrew his “pledge” letter to give up Falun Gong (one that he had written under pressure), he was sent to the hospital for the second time in May 2000. Because the doctors from the Guangzhou Fangchun Mental Hospital issued a so-called Diagnosis Certificate claiming that he had “mental problems,” he has suffered severe abuse and mistreatment by the staff up to the present time.

Xu Chengwen, the deputy chief of the Yandu County Police Department, personally led the police squad to interrogate and beat him on numerous occasions using a variety of inhuman methods.

Since February 2001, the police have tortured practitioners who have stepped forward on behalf of Falun Gong. Being inspired by the ancient methods of torture, the police handcuffed Yan's hands to two iron gates, and then they pushed the gates open, causing him tremendous pain. They then forced Yan, who was on the verge of death, to place his thumbprint next to a falsified statement claiming that he was an “organizer of trips to Beijing to make appeals against the ban of Falun Gong.”

Mr. Yan was then held at the local detention center for one month. Afterwards, he was held at the Yungang Mental Hospital for another forty-five days, and he endured even more inhuman torture there. In the end, he was sentenced to one and a half years in a labor camp.

Five practitioners, Guo Naitong, Zhu Yong, Wang Guiru, Chen Jian, and Wang Aihua, were sent to the Longgang Mental Hospital, where they were tortured in a variety of inhuman methods. The staff there used electric needles to electrocute the practitioners and force them to take medication that damaged their central nervous system. As a result, a number of practitioners still show symptoms of slow reaction time, memory loss, and excessive nervousness.

On October 1st, practitioner Cai Qiaofeng was arrested on his way to Beijing to appeal for an end to the ban of Falun Gong. On October 9th, he was escorted to the City detention center, and moved to the Longguang Mental Hospital one month later. He has still not been released.

3. State Appeals Office, Beijing
4. People's Liberation Army No. 102 Mental Hospital, Jiangsu Province

Perpetrators:

1. Pei, deputy chief of the Cuizhu Police Station, Changzhou City, Jiangsu Province
2. Xu Jiexin, director at Changzhou City Normal Institute of Technology, Jiangsu Province
3. Doctors and Nurses at People's Liberation Army No. 102 Mental Hospital, Jiangsu Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Zhang Wuying and her husband were forced to give up their teaching positions in the Changzhou City Normal Institute of Technology because they appealed to the authorities to stop persecuting Falun Gong. Moreover, the police authorities from Cuizhu Police Station often detained Ms. Zhang, who was pregnant at that time; they forced her to stand throughout the entire night.

At the beginning of April 2000, Ms. Zhang and her husband went to Beijing to appeal to the higher authorities to restore the reputation of Falun Gong. At that time, Ms. Zhang was over four months pregnant. Twenty or more plainclothes policemen beat her in front of the State Appeals Office. Afterwards, Ms. Zhang and her husband were escorted back to their school, and the school officials sent them to the People's Liberation Army No. 102 Mental Hospital and detained them there with the truly ill mental patients. While in the fifth month of her pregnancy, the nurses at the hospital tied Ms. Zhang to a bed, injected her with unknown substances, and force-fed her other drugs.

In August 2000, Ms. Zhang was hospitalized for three days after she gave birth to her son. Each day, her work unit assigned two colleagues in the hospital to watch her. After she checked out of the hospital, the school attendants at the main entrance would not allow any people outside the school to come in to visit her (Note: in China, schools provide housing for teachers).

In October 2000, Zhang and her husband went to the Shandong Province—their home Province. Pei, the deputy chief of the Cuizhu Police Station, led Xu Jiexin, the director at their school, and six other policemen at the Changzhou Train Station to grab Ms. Zhang's baby out of her arms and to return the couple to their school. In order to prevent them from going to Beijing to appeal to the central government, both the municipal police department and the school assigned one person to monitor them for surveillance purposes.

Around the Chinese New Year in 2001 (late January), Ms. Zhang and her husband took their baby to the Shandong Province for a vacation. The municipal police department of Changzhou City ordered the local police in Shandong Province to frequently visit and harass them during their daily routine. On February 28th, Ms. Zhang and her husband returned to Changzhou City. Eight policemen in two police vehicles from the local police station at the Cijiao Train Station intercepted them. They were forced into the police vehicle. Both the baby's and Ms. Zhang's clothes were torn by the police. Because of the frightening experiences, the baby began having diarrhea and crying throughout the night.

In May of 2001, police from Changzhou City kidnapped Ms. Zhang's husband and sentenced him to two years of forced labor without due process. The school's security guard, Li Honggen, kept Ms. Zhang and her child under a 24-hours-a-day surveillance, even when she went to buy food. The school followed orders from higher government officials to persecute Ms. Zhang. They would not allow people outside the school to help them, and they interrogated whoever had any communication or interactions with them. The police also threatened Ms. Zhang, saying that once her baby turned one-year-old, they would send her to a labor camp.

A Brief Report of the Incident:

On December 12th, 1999, Ms. He Xianggu and Ms. Zhang Xiaomei, went to Beijing to appeal to the government to end the persecution of Falun Gong. For invoking their constitutional right to appeal, they were detained for 15 days at a detention center in Changsha City, Hunan Province. While in the detention center doctors Gao Zhisheng, Mei Xiusen and He Boling from the Hunan Psychiatric Hospital in Changsha City conducted what they claimed was a “consultation diagnosis” for Ms. Zhang and Ms. He. Both Ms. Zhang and Ms. He were labeled as having “mental problems induced by superstition of wizardry”; therefore, they were hospitalized in the Psychiatric Hospital of Hunan Province.

On January 1st, 2000, Ms. He and Ms. Zhang were physically retrained and brought to the Hunan Psychiatric Hospital in Changsha City, Hunan Province, by Wu Shifan and other officials from their workplace at the Health Care Hospital of Women and Children in Changsha City, Hunan Province. While in the psychiatric hospital, they were forced to take an overdose of drugs intended only for people with psychosis. The drugs caused them to have multiple psychological and physical disorders. They were also injected with fluoro-hydroxypiperidine a drug that is a long-term retardant to the nervous system and is only used to treat patients with very serious schizophrenia. To deceive their relatives, friends and others, the hospital officials and doctors claimed that the drug used on Ms. He and Ms. Zhang was phenobarbital and harmless to the brain and body. Overcoming this psychological torture, both Ms. He and Ms. Zhang were able to go on a hunger strike to protest this treatment. Guo, the associate Director of the Hunan Psychiatric Hospital said, “If they don't eat, let's tie them up and apply intravenous drips. We have many measures to deal with them.” Both He Xianggu and Zhang Xiaomei were mentally and physically tortured for more than two months before the authorities released them from the Hunan Psychiatric Hospital.

In June of 2000, Zhang Xiaomei was dismissed from her job at the Health Care Hospital of Women and Children in Changsha City, Hunan Province.

On August 18th, 2000, officials from the Health Care Hospital for Women and Children opened He Xianggu's locker and found some Falun Gong books there. The next day August 19th, 2000, Ms. He was tied up and taken to the Hunan Psychiatric Hospital for the second time. No visitors were allowed to see her at the hospital. This time she was tortured with even harsher treatment. They injected her with a double dose of fluoro-hydroxypiperidine in addition to administering a daily overdose of drugs intended only for use on psychotic patients.

The effects of fluoro-hydroxypiperidine injection were dramatic. Within half an hour, the patient felt severe chest pains like she was having a heart attack. As the drug worked its way through the system, the patient's whole body started to tremble, making it hard to stand up, or sit or lie down. The movement in the arms and legs was impaired, and she was too weak to move. The eyesight became blurred and the muscles around the mouth lost control. The desire to communicate disappeared because it would take a great deal of effort to open the mouth. This drug could make a person emotionally aggravated, crying for no reason, and it has severe side effects on the brain itself.

By November 2000, as described by an eyewitness, Ms. He Xianggu didn't look like a normal human any more, but, rather, a seriously mentally retarded figure. She stood with a dull look in her eyes, with no expression on her face. Her back was hunched, her hands placed in front of her abdomen. She did not respond when spoken to, and she could barely utter a sentence even if someone took a lot of time to ask her the question.

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Without any other channels to make his opinion known, he went to Beijing to appeal, as is his right under the Chinese constitution. He was arrested for engaging in such an appeal.

To prevent practitioners from going to Beijing to appeal, the communist regime has ordered the local officials to control the practitioners in their workplaces. If a practitioner does go to Beijing to appeal, the officials of the practitioner's workplace will be criticized and punished by the higher authorities. To avoid the punishment, the communist officials in Mr. Liu's workplace falsely reported that Mr. Liu was mentally ill (although Mr. Liu was very healthy), and they threw him into the Tangshan City Mental Hospital in Tangshan City, Hebei Province. Mr. Liu was forcibly medicated and injected with gradually increasing dosages. In the end, Mr. Liu could hardly walk after being abused so much in the hospital.

2. The No. 1 Labor Camp of Hebei Province, Tangshan City, Hebei Province

Perpetrators:

2. Dr. Xu of Tangshan City Mental Hospital, Tangshan City, Hebei Province
3. Dr. Bao of Tangshan City Mental Hospital, Tangshan City, Hebei Province
4. Zhang, the director of the Labor Camp Management Office, Tangshan City, Hebei Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

In June and July 2000, the No. 1 Labor Camp of Hebei Province secretly sent practitioners Qiu Liying, Duan Jingjing, He Jing, and Zhao Shuying to the Tangshan City Mental Hospital because they insisted on practicing Falun Gong, because they refused to write repentance statements, and because they went on a hunger strike in the labor camp to resist their persecution.

The four of them were locked up with 40 patients who had severe psychiatric problems and were completely isolated from the outside world. The practitioners' charts were marked "Obsessive Psychosis," though a series of mental examinations conducted upon admission showed they were normal people. Their families were not informed that they had been sent to the mental hospital.

All of them had severe drug reactions, some of which were life threatening. They had explained to the director several times that they were normal people and thus refused to take the drugs. But the male director told them this could be stopped only after they gave up Falun Gong. The head nurse reported to Zhang, the director of the Labor Camp Management Office, that they had a strong allergic reaction to the drugs. Zhang instructed them to continue administering the drugs.

When the practitioners went on hunger strikes in the hospital, the head nurse left feeding tubes in their stomachs for a week. The rubber tubes became enlarged inside their stomachs and esophagi. Their throats swelled and were nearly blocked by phlegm. Another time, the head nurse brought some new tubes coated with a white powder. Without sterilizing the tubes she put them down the practitioners' noses.

The hospital often utilized drugs and electric shocks. One practitioner's hands and feet began to tremble and she became very nervous and fearful after the shock. The hospital staff also tried to hide the crushed drugs in milk, but didn't succeed.

The hospital administered anti-psychotic drugs to Ms. Qiu, at a time when she had been on a hunger strike for three months and had a diastolic blood pressure of only 30(Diastolic reading is when heart is at rest. Normal is around 70.). The next day, Ms.

Qiu's face was swollen and breathing was difficult for her. However, the director of her ward floor and Dr. Bao insisted on giving her drugs and several electro-shock treatments.

After Ms. Duan was medicated, her tongue hung outside her mouth for as long as 12 hours, without her being able to draw it back into her mouth. She had heart palpitations. Her face, mouth, and tongue turned purple. She also had an explosive headache that made her roll back and forth on the bed and strike the wall. She later described those moments as “more unbearable than death.” Ms. Duan has a narrow nasal passage and could not sleep with the pain.

Ms. He was tied down on bed so the hospital staff could force fluids into her. The male director instructed the head nurse to double the doses because Ms. He refused to take the drug. Ms. He could not get up the next day. Her face was gray, she was confused, she slept day and night, and she was unaware of her incontinence.

The hospital staff used new rubber tubes to force-feed the practitioners without sterilizing them. The new rubber tubing stung their nasal passages and made He Jing burst into tears and produce excessive nasal mucus. She developed a headache and had palpitations because of this.

Ms. Zhao's hands and legs were tied to a bed, and several people held her down and stuck needles into her on her first day in the hospital. Her blood was all over the sheets and the floor. Her family was not informed that Ms. Zhao was sent to the mental hospital.

In June 2000, one more practitioner was sent to this mental hospital by her work unit because she practiced Falun Gong. She was drugged and injected with drugs that made her delirious. She was given electric shocks for refusing to take the drugs, which made her nervous and lose consciousness many times. She cried loudly after waking up and begged her husband to take her home. The hospital refused to release her. Her work unit told her that she could be treated as a normal person and be discharged only after she gave up Falun Gong; otherwise she would be considered to have Obsessive Psychosis and would have to remain hospitalized and subjected to drugs, injections, and electric shocks.

5. Ma Zhanyuan, Wang Zhonghua and policemen of Weishui Police Station, Jinxing County, Hebei Province
6. Staff in Ankang Drug Rehabilitation Center, Tangshan City, Hebei Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Because Ms. Bai Yuzhi insisted on practicing Falun Gong and went to Beijing many times to appeal to the government against the ban of Falun Gong, she was repeatedly detained by the police and her home was ransacked by the police several times. On October 1st, 1999, she was sentenced to three years in a labor camp. She was first held at the Shijizhuang Female Labor Camp, Tangshan Kaipin Labor Station, and then moved to a labor station in Baoding City. While in the labor camps, she held a hunger strike for more than 3 months, asking for the right to perform the Falun Gong exercises. During this time, her weight dropped from more than 110 pounds to less than 80 pounds. The prison officials tried to force-feed her by using a feeding tube everyday. This caused severe damage to her esophagus and stomach lining. She could no longer walk steadily on her own, and the feeding tube was often covered with blood when it was taken out. Afterwards, she would often vomit large amounts of blood and bile. In spite of this, the authorities decided to punish her even further by sending her to the Ankang Drug Rehabilitation Center in Tangshan City. She was forcefully injected with illegal drugs, which made her feel as if there were bugs crawling all over her body. While giving her a physical examination, the hospital discovered that she had no blood pressure. When they tried to run an EKG, the machine kept making all kinds of strange noises and stopped working. They came to the realization that she would likely bleed to death if they tried to force-feed her one more time. Not wanting to be held responsible for her death, they told her family to take her home.

2. The Doctors at Ankang Psychiatric Hospital, Tangshan City, Hebei Province

A Brief Report of the Incidents:

Ankang Psychiatric Hospital at Tangshan City, Hebei Province has been abusing and torturing many Falun Gong practitioners for the past two years. They have been inhumanly treating them in many ways. The following are several cases of Falun Gong practitioners who had been forcefully injected with drugs meant for use on people with drug addictions or mentally ill patients. The doctors in this hospital physically tortured those practitioners.

In January of 2001, Liang Zhiqin was tortured with an electric baton by a guard named Wang Xuelu in the Kaiping Labor Camp. To protest her illegal detention, she went on a hunger strike with several dozen practitioners. Then she was sent to the mental hospital. On two occasions, she was forcefully given drugs to be used only on people with drug addictions or mental illness. Immediately after the injections, she experienced extreme pains in her heart and heart failure. She struggled painfully while being tied to the bed. She felt weak in her limbs for several days and she could not even do simple daily chores. Since she was injected with the drug, she had lost consciousness twice due to heart failure. When he heard this reaction, the director of a department in the hospital said, “If you do the hunger strike again, I will inject you with another drug that will make you suffer even more.”

Liang Zhiqin was also been tortured in other ways in the Ankang Psychiatric Hospital. She was hung in the hallway in such a way that only her tiptoes could barely touch the floor (this was because she explained what Falun Gong was to others). When she was hung up by only one hand for long time, she lost consciousness. Her pupils became dilated and she lost control of her bladder.

Ni Yingqin was handcuffed in the hallway for several hours because doctors in Ankang Psychiatric Hospital suspected that she was doing Falun Gong exercises. She was slapped on her face several times by one doctor and threatened by another. Then, they injected her with a drug. After the injection, she convulsed violently and was in agony. Afterwards, she felt drowsy and sleepy and could not walk steadily for several days after the incident.

Dong Shugui and Zhao Huixia were sent to the Ankang Psychiatric Hospital after several days of hunger strikes at the Tangshan City No.1 Detention Center. There, they heard a doctor say, “Give both of them a shot first.” Immediately after being injected with a drug they became restless and anxious. Their limbs twitched and they became numb. They felt very weak and could not walk more than a few steps a time. Their minds became hazy and they experienced insomnia. Dong Shugui was also handcuffed for several hours on the fourteenth day of her hunger strike for doing Falun Gong exercises.

Several other practitioners including, Ma Jinhua, Shao Liyan, and Zhang Shujuan were also injected with this drug. They were tortured by being tied to their beds for several days. They have been tortured both physically and mentally by the doctors in the Ankang Psychiatric Hospital.

Li Linong was illegally sent to the Ankang Hospital and treated as a mental patient by her employer for not giving up Falun Gong. She was detained in the hospital for two months and she was abused both mentally and physically. Everyday the hospital forced her to take drugs that were supposedly used only on people with mental disorders or drug addictions. She was also tied up in a bed for three days. After taking or being injected with the drugs, Li Linong oftentimes felt disoriented, dull, and nervous; she could not walk without the help of others, and she could not speak clearly.

In 2000 policemen Dong Aihua and Wang Jianjun arrested her again after she was released from the mental hospital. She had been arrested for practicing Falun Gong. After she had been detained for three months in the police station, she was sent to the Baoding detention center, then transferred to the Gaoyang detention center.

In the Gaoyang detention center, during a midnight interrogation on November 30th, 2000, the police tortured her with electric batons and an electric generator on her palms, the soles of her feet, her back, and many other sensitive places on her body. The police used rubber clubs and leather belts with metal buttons to beat her so brutally that she started vomiting blood.

From the midnight of December 6, she was tortured and beaten severely for three days and three nights until she vomited blood and fainted. She was sent to the hospital until she was eventually out of danger. She has experienced such midnight tortures six times, and each time the brutality increased. In an attempt to stop her practicing Falun Gong, the government (including Wang Fan, Wang Suying, Li Jinfu, and Yu Xiuqin and other members from the government) pressured her family to send her to the No. 6 Hospital in Baoding City. She had been detained there for four days. There she was forcefully injected twice a day while the physical examinations showed that she was normal.

On September 10th, 1999, she was detained in the Town police station because she wouldn't curse Falun Gong's teacher, Mr. Li Hongzhi, as they required. She was detained there for twenty-three days. She was released after she and the other seventy Falun Gong practitioners went on hunger strike against the illegal detention. Again, under high pressure from the Town government, her family sent her to the No. 2 Hospital of Hebei Province. In the psychiatric department of the hospital, all examinations showed that she was normal; however, she was still tied to a bed and given drugs and injections against her will twice a day. She also underwent electric shocks. After the "treatment", she felt weak; she was very anxious and couldn't fall asleep; she couldn't stand either. Neither could she sit or lay down. A doctor said, "You were too stubborn; being like that is considered an illness." Doctor Luo always asked Ms. Ye when he checked the room each day, "Do you still want to practice Falun Gong?" He said he would continue to give her injections until she changed her mind. Twice daily Ms. Ye was forced to take medicine in doses of 12-13 pills. An agreement was struck between Mr. Zhen (head of the security department of the hospital) and Wang (a manager from the police station of Wuhan City). Ms. Wang, a manager in the psychiatric department of the hospital, began to inject the practitioners with drugs that damaged their central nervous systems. Ms. Wang ordered the hospital security guards to tie the practitioners down and inject them with drugs for seven consecutive days. Then she changed the order to thirty days of injections. She had also threatened to give drug injections for one year to anybody who does Falun Gong exercises. After the injection, Ms. Peng lost consciousness. The Falun Gong practitioners could not stand and suffered from severe insomnia; they were in extreme pain and this lasted for two months. To protest this inhuman treatment, they went on a hunger strike and were force-fed. Ms. Wang used a tube through their nostrils to force-feed the practitioners. It was done twice a day. Every time, she would deliberately re-insert the tube several times. Blood spilled all over the place each time the tube was pulled out.

2. Dr. Li, Director Xiang and other Staff of No. 4 People's Hospital, Hefei City, Anhui Province
3. Head of Rongshida Company, Hefei City, Anhui Province

A Brief Report of the Incident:

Dr. Qu Yanan went to Beijing to appeal for an end to the persecution of Falun Gong. She was arrested and sent to a brainwashing class for 20 days. Afterwards, she was detained in Yicheng Detention Center four times for a total of 45 days.

On May 16th, 2000, the leaders of Rongshida Company came to the Yicheng Detention Center and forcibly took Dr. Qu to the No. 4 People's Hospital (a mental hospital). The doctors neither looked at her nor examined her. They simply admitted her and locked her up with about 40 or 50 mental patients.

As soon as Dr. Qu was admitted, Dr. Li and Director Xiang tried to give her an intravenous drip. Because Qu refused, they tied her to the bed. She was stuck with needles more than ten times. They injected her with sedatives. They tormented her until midnight. To protest such inhuman treatment, she started a hunger strike on the second day and asked to be released. Then Dr. Li, together with seven nurses, force-fed her through her nose. After failing to get the tube in ten times, they force-fed her by the mouth. It took many attempts to finish the feeding. The nurse-in-charge complained, "You were not sick. Why did they have to send normal people here! It makes us exhausted everyday." Dr. Qu was tied to the bed and was force-fed twice a day through her nose. Her nasal cavity and esophagus would bleed. Twice a day they gave her injections of sedatives. Such torture lasted for one week.

While at the mental hospital, the first words Dr. Li said to her each day when she visited the ward was, "Are you still going to practice Falun Gong? If you are, then we will continue giving you shots." After forcefully injecting her with the paralyzing drugs for more than ten days, they forced her to take "toxic" pills (a drug specifically for lunatics) twice a day. One time when they found her practicing Falun Gong, they quickly tied her to the bed again. From that day, they doubled her dosage. Because of the long-term effects of the drug injections, she became very fatigued. Her movements became slow, her hands shook, and her vision blurred. She felt drowsy all day. One day when she walked to the restroom, she suddenly felt dizzy and fell unconscious in the hallway. Because of the toxic effects of the drugs, her body became dropsical (Disease where a watery fluid collects in the cavities or tissue of the body). Her waist size changed from 27 inches to 35 inches and her whole body became deformed.

She was not released until November 22nd, 2000. Overall, she was locked up for six months and six days. The other Falun Gong practitioners locked up with her at the same mental hospital were: Cao Ping, Zhu Weifu and Lin Guiyuan. They experienced similar torture in the hospital.

A Brief Report of Incident:

In November 1999, Falun Gong Practitioner Ms. Chen Biyu was arrested when she went to Beijing to appeal to the government to stop the persecution of Falun Gong. Afterwards, she was returned to her hometown (Fuzhou City) and detained in the Shuitou Detention Center. In December 1999, she was detained in the Pre-treatment Unit of Fuzhou Mental Hospital and then transferred to the Fuzhou Mental Hospital. After she escaped from the mental hospital, she returned to Beijing to appeal for Falun Gong. She was arrested again and returned to Fuzhou. On January 7th, 2000, she was sent directly to the mental hospital. Under instructions from the hospital authorities, the chief physician of second unit in the hospital—knowing that Ms. Chen was mentally stable—tortured her with electric needles and injected her with nerve damaging drugs. She was severely tortured, which caused her to become incontinent and lose her memory. Later, she was transferred to another hospital. She was released because she could not pay the hospital bill. When she returned to her job at the bank, they tried to force her to quit; however, she protested saying that the punishment was unjust. Because of this, her two colleagues, Zheng Ruilin and Zhu Caihong, betrayed her for a material benefit from the authorities and, thus, she was sent to the Fuzhou Mental Hospital again. She was fired from the bank.

A Brief Report of the Incident:

In January 2001, Ms. Gu Peng, a nursing mother, her husband, and their six-month-old baby, were arrested by the police from the Tiananmen Square Police Station because they went to Tiananmen Square to appeal to the central government to stop persecuting practitioners of Falun Gong. They were detained in the basement of the Tiananmen Square Police Station, and fined 20,000 Yuan (over 3 years salary in urban areas). After they were escorted back from Beijing to Baoding City, her husband was detained at the Baoding Detention Center. Ms. Gu was kept under surveillance and was fired from her teaching position.

At the end of January, she carried her baby back to Beijing to appeal to the central government to obtain justice for the persecuted practitioners. After Ms. Gu was arrested, the police in Beijing repeatedly shocked her with an electron baton from her neck down. After returning to Baoding City, she appealed to the Baoding Detention Center for the release of her husband. However, the local 610 Office imprisoned her in a mental hospital. In the hospital, everyday she was punitively forced to take mentally debilitating medication and injections. This previously healthy mother was tortured with drugs until her mind was completely debilitated. Now, Ms. Gu unceasingly paces the floor in a drug-induced stupor. Her baby is deprived of vital nutrition and his mother's care because of the torture in the mental hospital.
